2- Making choices about healthcare

Choices about healthcare include what treatments you want and what treatments you don’t want.

Some choices may seem less serious, like whether or not to take a painkiller for a headache.

And some are more serious, like whether to have an operation.

In an emergency there can be some very serious choices to make.
An emergency is when someone gets very sick or has a bad accident, and needs help in a hurry.

In an emergency, choices often have to be made very quickly.

Most of the time when people are unwell or hurt in an emergency there is a good chance that treatment will make them better.

This can make choosing treatments seem easier.

But sometimes there is not a good chance that a treatment will work.

And some treatments can be very painful for a long time afterwards.

So, everyone will have different wishes for how they want to be treated in an emergency.
Making a ReSPECT plan will help people think about the kind of care they want before an emergency happens.

In an emergency, some people will be too poorly to tell doctors and nurses what they think.

The ReSPECT form will make sure a person’s wishes are written down if they have to see a doctor or go to hospital.

ReSPECT is there to make sure that any decisions about your future care and treatment are made with you.

You should get all the support you need from healthcare workers to make a decision about emergency care.

If someone is not able to make a decision about emergency care, ReSPECT will make sure those decisions are made in the person’s best interests.
